In India, mining stands as a prominent economic activity, serving as the backbone for both the manufacturing and infrastructure sectors in terms of economic impact. Within this industry, the Quarry and Stone Crusher sector plays a crucial role in fostering development by generating various raw materials essential for construction and manufacturing activities.

In India, the Mining Industry comprises 15,000+ Quarry and Stone Crusher Units, providing over 10 lakhs of direct employment opportunities in activities like mining, operating crushing plants, and raw material transportation. This sector serves as a vital income source for uneducated and unskilled individuals in rural areas. The Tamil Nadu Quarry and Stone Crusher Associations are essential pillars driving the evolution of stone quarries and boosting the efficiency of crushing units.

The IMCEE will showcase the presence of over 1000 participants, including owners, members, and workers from the Tamil Nadu Quarry and Stone Crusher Owners Association across all 39 districts. Their involvement is expected to influence key aspects of the mining industry, benefiting stakeholders such as young entrepreneurs, investors, and distributors.

Why Chennai, Tamilnadu for this event?

Tamil Nadu, the second-largest economy in India, ranks second in economic freedom among Indian states. The state significantly contributes to the national business sector, with 9.1% of enterprises originating there. It is actively engaged in mining projects for resources like Titanium, Lignite, Magnesite, Graphite, Limestone, Granite, and Bauxite. It also serves as a primary supplier of Molybdenum for the country.

Chennai, situated on the southeastern coast of India, serves as the capital city of Tamil Nadu. Renowned for its diverse industries, including healthcare, automobiles, and software, it has earned titles such as "India's health capital" and the "Detroit of India." The city boasts a comprehensive transportation infrastructure, encompassing Air, Road, Rail, and Water modes.

Despite being home to various mining and mineral companies, Chennai itself does not host active mines within its city limits. Instead, it stands out as a major urban center celebrated for its commercial, cultural, and educational significance. On the other hand, the surrounding districts like Kanchipuram, Thiruvallur, Chengalpattu, Vellore, and Villupuram are recognized contributors to the mining and minerals sector in the region.
